

Luton's Dream Of Wembley Is Shattered

In unfamiliar blue against a "ruffled table-cloth" of snow, Luton went out of the Cup, and Bolton Wanderers go on into the sixth round. In a game lacking in thrills, Luton's star, Jesse Pye, was well held by Barrass, but here the Town centre-forward is seen initiating a raid down the middle—one of many that came to nothing. R5727H

Bolton's goalkeeper, Hanson, saves his side in a perilous moment when Turner had a chance to score. The goalkeeper is seen falling on the ball to keep out the Town inside-left. R5734H

Moment Of Anxiety For Bolton

Wanderers did not under-rate Jesse Pye! In this picture the Town centre-forward is partly concealed by Barrass and Hartle, whose united efforts prevailed in a heading duel. G5631H

The hopes of Luton supporters soared when the Town were awarded a free-kick on the edge of the penalty area. Jesse Pye has often scored from such kicks. Not so on this occasion, when the Wanderers formed a solid wall in front of their goal, and the danger passed. R5735H

Happy "Fans"

In the foreground is a pile of snow which supporters of both teams had helped to clear from the pitch. And here are the "fans," just before the start, in happy mood. R5723H

Another group in the 23,735 crowd—fewer than had been expected at a Cup-tie which held the promise of producing a great game. The weather had much to do with the prospect of a record "gate" being unfulfilled. R5724H
