Problems Still Face Town

"I WANT TO GET A SETTLED TEAM," SAYS MANAGER

Two or three factors have prevented Manager Dally Duncan from making the choice of his team to visit Notts County on Saturday and not the least of them was that he was waiting to see how Sid Owen got through his first match test against Norwich Reserves last night.

A successful try-out, combined with no reaction afterwards, would put Owen right in line for a quick return to the League side, but it is unlikely that any decision will be made until to-morrow.

The injury position is another thing that has caused the manager to delay selection, and Gordon Turner, who had his ankle gashed on Saturday, received another kick on it at Watford and it is a case now of waiting to see how he progresses.

He added that injuries had been

The Forward Line

THE worry, of course, is not about the defence, which has done its job well, despite the absence of Owen, but about the forward line.

Evidence of the "settled" policy was given on Tuesday, when an

County Are Very Much In The Doldrums THE troubles of Notts County, marooned at the bottom of the table, are greater and more varied than those facing the Town, who appear to hold an outstanding chance of recording their first away win of the season if they can strike anything approaching peak form. Without a manager since Eric
