

UNHAPPY LUTON ARE IN A BIT OF A PICKLE

Luton 1, Norwich 2

BLOOD, sweat and tears . . . blood streaming from a gash down the bridge of Gordon Turner's nose as they carried him off on a stretcher just before half-time.

Sweat . . . pouring off players who ran all over the place hoping for the best but never being able to catch up with any idea.

Tears . . . shed by Luton fans who see little hope for their side if something isn't done about new signing before next season.

BARTRAM'S PROBLEM

Manager Sam Bartram has done his best, but admits quite frankly that Luton had not the kind of money other clubs are asking for the players he wants.

Norwich, without giving one of their best displays, exposed obvious weaknesses in every department of the Luton side.

It was unfortunate that Turner should have received the full impact of Ollie Burton's elbow. It was a hard indiscriminate tackle but Luton were on the way to defeat long before that happened.

They were a goal down after twenty-four minutes when Waites fastened on to a Burton pass and fell further in arrears eight minutes after the interval to a magnificent goal scored by Allcock.

McKechnie relieved the gloom just before the finish
