

Great Luton laugh-in 74/75

HARRY HASLAM applied his own special brand of humour to Keith Weller's amazing own-goal that swung this match irretrievably Luton's way.

The Luton manager quipped: "That was a great chip of Weller's." Leicester must have him practising his shooting at the wrong end during kick-about.

Another pleasing feature was the display of Adrian Alston, bought for £25,000 on the strength of his performances in Munich for the Australian World Cup side.

Alston first caught Leicester cold when he headed home West's cross. Alston completed Leicester's misery with a run that took him clear of the defence.

Wallington was quickly off his line to save well with his legs, and Alston gathered the rebound to shoot hard across the face of goal.

The ball spun out of Wallington's hands and Husband stabbed it home.
