PARTY RUINED BY AN OFFSIDE GOAL

LUTON TOWN 0, STOKE CITY 1

THE HOLIDAY weekend fizzled out as quietly as the Town's home season in general at Kenilworth Road on Monday. Another attendance of under 10,000, for the third time in the last four games, gave a remarkably muted farewell to the campaign.

An early goal by a linesman gave Stoke hope of avoiding relegation with their second away win of the season as the Town lost at home for the ninth time—a figure which only relegated Wolves match.

Incapable of producing the invention or wit to break down stubborn opposition for the 86 minutes after the goal, the Town gave their fans nothing to cheer about.

Raddy Antic, Brian Horton and Paul Walsh were probably making their final appearances at Kenilworth Road, and it was their bad luck that this season has been spoiled by background aggro between club and supporters. It ought to have been a cheerful farewell party on Monday, but Stoke's desperate need for points took priority.

THE GUILF WAS MISSING

"We didn't have the guile to get through them" was the simple and accurate summing up of manager David Pleat before Fleet Street returned to the subject they have hammered for months, the future of Paul Walsh.

His departure will be one of several changes to be made in the summer. The manager has a re-building job to do which will be almost as difficult as the one he carried through when he took charge six years ago.

My major hope is that he is allowed to have a big proportion of the Walsh income to invest in players.

Stoke grabbed their lucky win with a performance that owed more to determination and spirit than to football skill, although they deserved to win because veterans Sammy McLroy and Paul Maguire had the better of things in midfield.

Garry Parker again fought valiantly, but with Horton and Frank Bunn unable to hit the highspots the attack received fitful service.

GOAL WAS A JOKE

Mitchell Thomas, occasionally a raw defender, tried to show the attack the right idea, particularly in the first half before Mark Chamberlain started to have more effect for Stoke.

The fourth-minute decisive goal was a joke. The Town were moving out after a corner was cleared, George Berry headed the ball back towards goal, and Ian Painter, knowing he was offside, went through the motions of putting the ball into the net.

Everyone stood and waited for a flag and a whistle, but linesman Mr D. R. Elleray did nothing so referee Michael James allowed the goal to stand. And neither side really looked like getting a goal after that.
